Johnny Carson has a laugh on a Pleasanton inventor

"Did you see some guy invented an earthquake detector? When there's an earthquake, an alarm goes off and your State Farm agent pops up and says, 'You're not insured.'"

With that quip, Tonight Show host Johnny Carson exposed 40 million television viewers to the invention of Pleasanton's Richard Spencer.

Spencer, who is president of Seismotronics Corporation in Dublin, says that mention in Carson's time-honored monologue Tuesday night was the highlight of extensive media coverage his earthquake detectors have generated.

After The Times first reported on the invention Sept. 22, a wire service picked up the story and it carried in newspapers throughout the earthquake-conscious Pacific northwest. Since then, several radio and television news services carried the story.

"I'm glad he got a hold of it," Spencer said yesterday. "It might make people realize what an important device it is."

Spencer said Carson inadvertently hit on a major threat posed by earthquakes. "Most people don't realize that homeowners' insurance policies don't cover earthquake damage. And if a house burns down because of an earthquake, it isn't covered either."

Carson has been sensitive about earthquakes ever since the night his monologue stalled and an aftershock from the San Fernando Valley quake in 1971 filled the laughless void.

Quit for a day

If you are a smoker, today is your big day. The Great American Smokeout is being sponsored by the American Cancer Society nation-wide to encourage smokers to quit, at least for one day.

Last year, on the day of the Great American Smokeout, nearly 30 percent of California's smokers, 1,500,000 people stopped smoking. This year the ACS hopes to reach the goal of 25,000 in the San Francisco Bay Area alone, and 5 million throughout the nation.

The Cancer Society says that most smokers are aware of the hazards of smoking, and would like to quit. The Smokeout is a day when they can try giving up the habit for one day and have lots of company and moral support.

"Smokeless Thursday" is Nov. 17. Although 30 million American smokers have already quit the habit permanently, 240 Americans die every day from lung cancer. If smoking is your habit, today is the day to be proud of being a quitter.

Military preps for emergency

PLEASANTON — Camp Parks came to life this week as scores of personnel from the 402nd Military Police company undertook three phases of police and civil defense training.

Soldiers dressed as both civilians and military personnel staged mock training exercises to test their training under life-like situations.

The training is designed to improve their capability as relief aid in case a major catastrophe strikes.

Soldiers participated in mock drills such as making arrests, learning booking procedures, and other routine police matters that could become critical in an emergency.

The first phase of the training took troops from Hunter Liggett army airfield to Sharp Army Depot to test their mobility.

Civil defense exercises being conducted at Camp Parks taught MPs the critical points about their roles following a major emergency, including rescue and evacuation.

The final phase, also held at Camp Parks, dealt with training in routine police matters, such as handling criminal investigations and making "good" arrests.

The 402nd is part of the 504th MP Battalion.

Rate hikes due

EBMUD set for another dry winter

OAKLAND — It looks like a long, dry, expensive winter for East Bay Municipal Utilities District customers.

EBMUD General Manager John Harnett warned Tuesday of water rationing continuing "for at least one more year" and possibly two, coupled with increased water rates to make up for lost revenue.

He expects to have a new rate proposal to EBMUD directors by their first December meeting, with the new rates effective in January.

"It looks like we're in for another extremely dry year," he said. This month's below normal rainfall indicates the rest of the season may fall short of the average for the third consecutive year.

Only 1.39 inches of precipitation have fallen on the Bay area since July 1, according to the National Weather Service. Normal rainfall to date is 1.58 inches. Last year, 1.68 inches had fallen by mid-November.

Rainfall in the Sierra foothills where EBMUD maintains its main water sources on the Mokelumne River and Pardee Reservoir is 52 percent of normal. The Pardee Reservoir is down to 35 percent of capacity.

Harnett expects about 50 percent of a normal year's runoff in 1978, or some 192 billion gallons of water.

At that rate, rationing could remain at the current 35 percent reduction and still leave the district with a 610-day supply for 1979.

But rationing has also cut into the district's revenue.

Customers have more than complied with the district's 35 percent mandatory reduction and cut use by 40 percent.

Zone 7 plan for control falls short

HAYWARD — Zone 7 board members backed off their desire to hire their own staff following a joint meeting with Alameda County Supervisors last night.

Zone 7, the only one of 13 county flood control and water conservation district units with an elected board, had hoped to separate its staff from the county for greater control over its own operations.

Board directors instead last night leaned toward Supervisor Joe Bort's recommendation that they hire their own general manager to manage Zone 7 employees who would remain under the flood control district.

Valley Supervisor Valerie Raymond suggested that a memo of understanding between the supervisors and Zone 7 be written, stating that certain Zone 7 employees be under the direct supervision of the general manager.

After 90 minutes of discussion, the Zone 7 board, without absent board director Joe Concannon, gave tentative approval to the recommendation that only a general manager be hired.

The board backed off one of its main demands when it agreed not to set salaries or have the power to hire or fire its employees. To do this, county counsel Richard Moore said, would require that Zone 7 employees not remain under county control.

Supervisors Charles Santana and Fred Cooper were absent from last night's meeting. Cooper had charged that Zone 7 was trying to assume zoning powers in its quest for a separation from the county.

Penalty hits Chabot soccer

COVA unit views future

Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) steering committee will meet at 8 p.m. today in the Valley Community Services District conference room, 7051 Dublin Boulevard.

A discussion of the purpose and future of COVA and the possible choice of a staff director will be considered.

Valley Community Services District directors voted Tuesday night to vote to disband COVA, but did not say if they will take the initiative in trying to disband the organization.

You can light up at the hospital

LIVERMORE — Yes you can smoke in Valley Memorial Hospital. But only if you are in certain areas of the building.

If you're in the outpatient lounge waiting a long time for an appointment, you can light up one. But if you're in emergency, as a patient or visitor, the rule is no smoking.

Administrator Tom Andrews explained the different smoking areas, after pointing out that their policy tends to restrict smoking "because obviously it is a health hazard." You can smoke on the main floor, in the main lounge, chapel and cafeteria.

"But we do have 'no smoking' tables designated in the cafeteria," Andrews added.

Smoking is not allowed above the first floor, except for smoking patients. If you smoke and are admitted to the hospital, you'll probably end up with smoking room mates. "We put the smoking patients together, but if a non-smoking patient doesn't mind we can put a smoker in that room," Andrews said.

The reasoning behind no smoking in the emergency is, according to Andrews, "By definition, people are sick who come to emergency and we have no way to separate smokers and non-smokers there."

Smoking is allowed in the main lobby, where family and friends often wait to hear about someone in surgery. They may wait four or five hours, Andrews said, "And I just don't have the heart to tell them not to smoke."

These people waiting are reluctant to go outside to smoke for fear someone might come looking for them with a message or progress report, the administrator said.

European tour: Foothill band leader picked

Robert Moorefield, director of the award-winning Foothill High School band, has been selected to lead a 240-member prep honor band on a 22-day tour of Europe next summer.

At present, 20 members of the Falcon band and youngsters from the Amador Valley and Dublin High School bands are also slated to go.

The ay Area entourage would leave from San Francisco July 13 and fly to Geneva, Switzerland. They would stay initially in pensions, small boardinghouse-type accommodations, at the foot of the Swiss Alps near Zermatt.

Parks

Hurt climbers were the first

Rock climbing and rappelling have become increasingly popular in local parks and recreation areas and while climbing can be hazardous, it is still one of the least regulated activities in both the East Bay regional and state parks.

Two climbers injured in the past week at Mt. Diablo State Park and in the area of San Ramon's Las Trampas regional park required evacuation and later hospitalization at John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek.

Virginia Lampkin, 22, of Pacifica reportedly suffered a compound fracture of her left leg in a 40-foot fall at Mt. Diablo Sunday.

She was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday.

Mark J. Gideon, 16, of Hayward, climbing with at least 10 companions including a reported climbing instructor, was evacuated by helicopter after his fall near Las Trampas Nov. 10. After he fell an estimated 50 feet, doctors on emergency duty tentatively diagnosed his internal injuries as a possible split or ruptured liver, according to park officials.

Both park departments have said climbers' only restrictions prevent the use of permanent metal bolts that would be left on the rock face after climbing. More regulations were not necessary according to Chris Nelson, head of the EBRPD's park and interpretive programs.

"In the 15 years I've been here, there hasn't been a case of someone getting hurt climbing rocks," he said, adding that Rocky Ridge is property of the East Bay Municipal Utilities District, not the park district.

"We haven't expanded the area because we wouldn't want it to become a testing ground for neophyte rock climbers," he said and pointed out climbers at Rocky Ridge "would probably be trespassing."

Joint regional group suggested for smog edicts

OAKLAND — A joint committee of several Bay Area regional agencies could be the best bet to carry out federal smog clean-up edicts over the next 20 years, according to Alameda County Supervisor Fred Cooper.

Cooper, who reported after a meeting of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board of directors, said that five options are being suggested in carrying out the federal orders to clean up the air.

The one most popular with the BAAPCD board is option three: a committee of directors from BAAPCD, Metropolitan Transportation Commission and Association of Bay Area Governments. The state Air Resources Board could be included as an ex-officio member.

Other supervisors told Cooper to notify BAAPCD they like that option, too. It has the advantage of coordinating the most relevant agencies affecting stationary and mobile sources of smog and it avoids drawbacks of the other four options.

The other options include 1) making BAAPCD the sole agency for carrying out the plan; 2) have ABAG as the lead agency; 4) create a new regional agency to absorb functions of ABAG, MTC, BAAPCD and other agencies; and 5) consolidate existing environmental agencies in the Bay area into a "little Environmental protection Agency."

Cooper said the problem with the first option is that the federal EPA probably would not allow it, but would require a broader political base for such important environmental and political decisions.

The second option would shut out BAAPCD and other relevant agencies, said Cooper. The fourth alternative would create a "super agency," actually a new level of government which the Knox Bill had proposed in the past. BAAPCD and many other agencies have opposed this.

The fifth choice, creation of a "little EPA," is acceptable to BAAPCD, but would require state legislation to create a new agency.

VMH addition

Workmen yesterday were putting the finishing touches on the intensive and coronary care unit being constructed at Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore. The $525,000 project will add five beds to the coronary unit, three beds to intensive care, with two other beds open to patients in either unit. The unit, located on the third floor, was built from accumulated funds through the operating surplus. The daily rate per bed is $122, plus $7.50 per hour — compared to the normal ward price of $124 per bed. Tours of the new unit, which includes a nursing station, substation and lounge, will take place Monday and are open to the public. Patients will be admitted to the new unit next week.

Pipeline bond consultants warn of opponents actions

PLEASANTON — Bond counselors for the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) fear the CARD Committee's initiative may "be a major stumbling block" hindering selling pipeline bonds, according to counselor Carlo Fowler of the San Francisco based firm Orrick, Herrington.

LAVWMA plans to begin selling those bonds this January, but CARD's (a local community action group) initiative seeks to require voter approval before those bonds can go on the market. If CARD pushes the initiative petition drive and obtains the approximately 5,000 signatures required, that initiative could go on the March 7 ballot.

Could LAVWMA legally go ahead and sell bonds in January when the issue wouldn't be before the voters until March?

The legal ramifications of the proposed initiative haven't been discussed yet, says LAVWMA attorney Ken Scheidig. Scheidig plans to meet with bond counselors soon to work out those complications.

According to Scheidig, the LAVWMA board will have several options if CARD's petition drive is successful: 1) LAVWMA could agree to put the petition on the ballot and hold off on the sewer pipeline project until voters have approved it; 2) LAVWMA could decide the initiative has no legal base and go ahead with plans; 3) the agency could rule no legal base for the initiative, but still hold off on bond selling until the likely ensuing court battle is resolved.

Either the impending initiative vote in March or a court battle could make bonds difficult to sell all depending on the attitude of bond buyers, according to Fowler. If bonds are not sold, the pipeline isn't financed. LAVWMA has considered a "pay as you go" plan wherein Pleasanton, Livermore and VCSO would pay steep costs for two or three years to finance the pipeline — instead of small payments to bond buyers over a period of 20 years.

But Scheidig says the proposed initiative may also entangle that plan in legal battles.

LAVWMA's legal worries are at an "if" stage right now as CARD hasn't decided whether to go ahead with the initiative process. CARD is waiting to see how much support from citizens throughout the valley the initiative idea receives before making a final decision.

Scheidig expects to know within the next few weeks what LAVWMA's best option will be and what he'll recommend to the board.

Foothill director to head tour

Moorefield was recommended by fellow band directors from throughout the state to lead the honor band on its trip, which will play six concerts in concert halls or cathedrals in Switzerland, Salzburg, Austria, Rome, Paris, London and a city in Germany.

Auditions for prospective band members are now underway and band members from Valley high schools should contact Moorefield at Foothill High School if they're interested. The band director at Aragon High School in San Mateo is assisting with auditions on the Peninsula.

Moorefield said he hopes to have his concert band group filled by Feb. 1, 1978.

Voyages International of Denver is making tour arrangements. Fred Brigham, area sales representative for the firm, notified Moorefield of his selection.

While such tours are relatively commonplace, this marks Moorefield's first as a director.

After landing in Geneva, Switzerland, the entourage will proceed to their quarters at the foot of the Swiss Alps and near the legendary Matterhorn.

Cost of the trip will be $1,250, to be borne by each student and family.

To encourage more Valley preps, a meeting is scheduled Sunday, Dec. 4 at 1 p.m. in the band room at Dublin High. A film, depicting areas the group will visit, is scheduled.

Falcon bandmen, meanwhile, are preparing for their annual Thanksgiving tour to Long Beach, Anaheim and Magic Mountain.

The Foothill band, along with Moorefield and chaperones, will leave at 2 a.m. Thanksgiving morning by bus, with the four-day trip taking them to the amusement park near Newhall (for a presentation), and the annual All-Western Band Review in Long Beach. The group will stay in Anaheim.

Planners OK studio variances

LIVERMORE — A garden area with historical significance swayed the planning commissioners' decision to allow two seldom approved variances at The Country Studio on First Street.

Since First Street in that vicinity eventually will be a deadend, when the First Street Overpass is completed, commissioners felt they could allow cars to back out of the lot.

And to preserve the garden site behind the photographer's studio, commissioners finally agreed to require four parking spaces in tandem parking on the sides of the studio.

The commission discussed parallel parking in the 12-foot driveway, but found a problem with maneuvering and turning around a vehicle in that tight space without taking out some of the trees and garden area.

Photographer Les Jacobs told the commissioners his business requires very little parking, since photographs are done by appointment and it would be a one-photographer operation. "We have a rather nice garden area we'd like to keep as part of old Laddsville," he told them. "I would hate to see cars parked on that antique site."

He said his business is being centered around the turn-of-the-century feeling of the garden.

Commissioner Bill Zagotta suggested Jacobs work with another new business next door, a nursery, for a possible coordination of parking to help both businesses.

The variances were approved with the condition that it be limited to the Country Studio operation on an appointment basis with no more than one photographer.

Chamber says lift sewer ban

LIVERMORE — The Chamber of Commerce has come to the support of the city in its efforts to get the sewer ban lifted by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

In a letter to that board, Chamber President Robert Bruns said the city had been working with other valley agencies to solve the sewer disposal problem and to eliminate discharges into the creek system.

He added, "The city met the initial requirements you set forth for proper and timely compliance, and yet the order is still in effect."

Bruns admonished the board that the order creates a lot of uncertainty about the city's future. "The political clout of the order is enough to cast a pall over Livermore, when business people are searching for optimal new locations for companies."

He cited the expense to potential businesses and industry to acquire land, draw up plans and secure city approval. "All of this is done without any assurance that you will grant a sewer connection which is needed before the city can issue a building permit."

"See me for all your family insurance needs."

Motel could lose a sign

LIVERMORE — The El Dorado Motel's oversized sign violates city zoning, and planning commissioners see no justification for permitting it.

If there is no appeal within 14 days, the motel must take the sign down.

Owner L.B. Patel and his lawyer Paul Dobbins tried unsuccessfully to convince the planning commission Tuesday night that a slightly smaller, though still larger than presently permitted, sign was necessary to attract business on the well-traveled First Street.

"It's not a question of can it be done attractively," explained Commissioner Candy Simonen. "This sign is bigger than we allow. Where signs aren't regulated, each business builds a sign larger than the others to get the customers and it becomes a series of escalating ever larger signs."

Dobbins heatedly argued that the smaller free-standing sign would be obstructed by existing foliage. He loudly urged the commission to allow the owner to "cut the sign in half, have only the word 'Motel' appear, but let the sign be 28 feet high, only 3 feet higher than the requirement."

They were asking for a 33 foot high sign originally, with a total of 133 square feet.

"I sincerely believe a man who put his life savings in a business could be obliterated if you deny this application," Dobbins said. He asked for a year's variance.

His plea for a trilon sign was vetoed by the city staff, which explained that such signs are allowed only for corner lots. Since his property is not on a corner, his sign must remain parallel.

As for the year's variance, "We have other applications pending on free-standing sign violations and they probably would have the same arguments," said Zoning Administrator Paul Curtis.

Park gets a name

LIVERMORE — The park adjacent to the Duarte Garage at the end of North L Street and N. Livermore Avenue finally has a name. Lincoln Highway Park was the name recommended by the Livermore Heritage Guild, and the city council agreed.

Known for quite awhile unofficially as Portola Park, Mrs. Janet Newton of the Heritage Guild reminded the council that the park officially had no name. The museum of old vehicles and memorabilia of local history to be created by the Heritage Guild in the old garage has been named Duarte Garage and Lincoln Highway Museum.

In other business, council members discussed authorizing a retail business in a residential area. In this case, it was a watch repair conducted in conjunction with an on-site jewelry business.

At first Councilman pale Turner disagreed with the planning commission's recommendation to allow the business because "I think it's a retail business and shouldn't offer the retail businesses competition out of the downtown area."

Marshall Kamen argued the other side, noting that some jewelry stores use off-site repairmen to fix watches brought to their stores rather than having in-store repair shops.

Mayor Helen Tirsell agreed, adding that some handicapped trained self-employed repairmen do this kind of work in their homes.

"This person actually is a sub-contractor for the store," interjected Kamen. "If we refuse this resolution, we'll be hurting those very people. It bears watching, and self-policing."

Turner agreed, and the council approved the resolution.

City Manager Bill Parness urged the council to approve a $12,500 allotment to Las Positas Golf Course to complete work on the greens. Parness said the money would have to come from city reserves. "but it's absolutely necessary for greens reconstruction. If not done correctly, it would affect the whole golf course."

He said the remaining segment to be reconstructed is "the heart of the course. It would detract or attract play to the course."

The city council approved the allotment so the work can be done during the winter months during the low volume playing period.

And the council is seeking applications for a position on the Airport Advisory Board. Appointments to that board and several other city commissions will be made Nov. 28, and applications are due by Nov. 23 at the city clerk's office.

UC argues Bakke case race rights

BERKELEY — The 1964 Civil Rights Act allows universities to adopt race-conscious admission programs such as the one challenged in the Bakke case now before the U.S. Supreme Court, the University of California argued in a brief Wednesday.

And attorneys for Allan Bakke said they had forwarded a brief claiming the act could provide an even more "forceful" argument against "any discrimination."

The legal briefs were prepared after the justices asked for additional arguments on Title VI of the Act, which says no person in any federally funded program may be discriminated against for reasons of race, color or national origin.

Justices heard oral arguments in the case last month.

Federal funds support research and education at the UC-Davis Medical School, which rejected Bakke in favor of minority students with less impressive academic records.

Bakke, a white engineer twice denied admission at Davis, took legal action and the California Supreme Court ruled he was a victim of discrimination and invalidated minority admissions programs. That decision was based on the 14th Amendment to the Constitution, which says no state should deny a person equal protection under the law.

The UC brief argues the equal protection clause leaves state schools "free to adopt race-conscious admissions policies affording minorities more nearly equal access ... bringing an increased measure of racial justice to a society still marred by the consequence of racial injustice."

"To read Title VI as taking away this freedom...and thus to deprive minorities...would not only stand the Civil Rights Act on its head, it would turn a charter of liberty into an instrument of exclusion from opportunities central to American life."

Bakke's attorney, Reynold Colvin, in his brief, said both the 14th Amendment and Title VI support the argument that Bakke was the victim of discrimination because he had qualified for admission at Davis.

Bakke's lawsuit says he was denied admission solely because he is white.

The UC brief also notes legislative history does not allow individuals to sue agencies or schools receiving federal funds, but instead they are to direct complaints to appropriate federal agencies.

Bakke filed such a complaint with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which reviewed Davis' admission procedure and took no action, the brief said.

By its treatment of the complaint, HEW has accepted minority admissions as being consistent with Title VI, the UC brief said.

The Great American Smoke-Out

"Great American Smoke-Out" (GAS) day will be observed nationally today, as the American Cancer Society hopes that at least half of all adult smokers will stop smoking for at least one day.

Pledge cards stating, "I promise not to smoke on Thursday, Nov. 17, 1977" are being distributed throughout the nation, as exhibits, posters, pins and rallies are among the activities to be planned to help those signing to keep their pledge in "Smokeless Thursday."

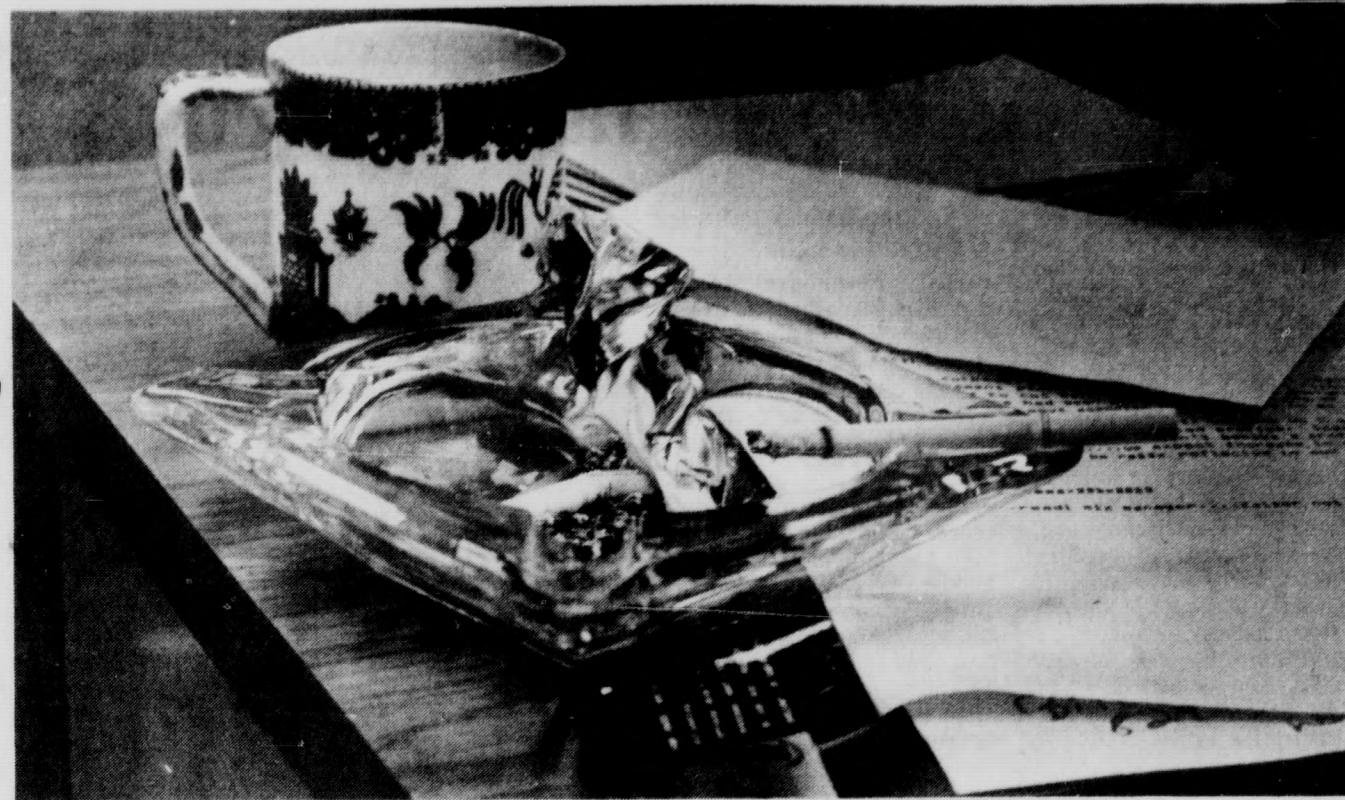

One and a half million California cigarette smokers took the pledge and quit smoking at last year's Smoke-Out. Almost 30 percent of the state's five million smokers participated in the event.

Ten percent of those who quit for "Smokeless Thursday" ended up quitting for good, last year.

The Smokeout, says the American Cancer Society, is a light-hearted approach to a major health problem. The purpose of the Smokeout is to encourage smokers to give up the smoking habit for just one day, at least.

Last year the Smokeout was only in California. It was so successful that this year it's gone nation-wide.

Many experts call cigarette smoking the greatest avoidable health hazard in the world. Most smokers are aware of the hazards of

No easy task

Snuffing out a 40-year puff

"It's one of the toughest things I ever did in my life," says Charles "Chuck" Ladner, a former two-pack-a-day smoker. Ladner is president of the Valley Community Services District who completely quit smoking four years ago.

Chuck started smoking in high school in Fargo, North Dakota, everyone else was doing it. "It resulted in a 40-year habit that came near to taking his life."

Now a victim of emphysema, Chuck believes he would be dead now had he not stopped. He says that cigarette smoking is just like being addicted to a drug: "It's the first thing you do in the morning, and the last thing you do at night. It's very difficult to quit."

Chuck says he never considered the health threatening factors of smoking. And early in the 1950's when the Surgeon General came out with the statement that smoking was harmful to one's health, still he did not quit. "I never even gave it a good thought one way or another. I never considered the consequences."

"Emphysema sneaks up on you," says Chuck. "When I think back, when I was hunting pheasants, years ago, I'd be going through a cornfield and I was short of breath. But I was heavy, and I attributed it to being overweight and to lack of exercise more than anything else," he says. "The first time anybody really told me to quit smoking was in 1965 when I had an operation, for something else," he says, "the doctor told me I was developing emphysema. I quit for eight months."

"But then I made the mistake of smoking a couple of cigarettes, and got back on it. I think it's a combination of habit, and the desire of one's own system for satisfaction. I went right back to my normal two-pack-a-day smoking in 1966." "Finally in 1974 I made up my mind that if I wanted to live much longer I better quit smoking."

"I set a target date to quit, like a couple of weeks off. I sold myself through this period," says Chuck. "The date came and Chuck stopped smoking completely."

"I think the reason I could finally quit smoking," says the healthy looking VCSO president, "was I was around my wife most of the time and she helped me not to smoke. I knew she didn't want me to smoke, so I didn't smoke."

"The desire for smoking stayed with me for at least two years," Chuck admits, "after I stopped smoking." But he no longer has a desire to smoke, after over three years.

"There were many times I wanted to try one, but I knew I'd just be starting all over again," says Chuck. "Breaking a forty year habit is not easy. Like an alcoholic, you'd do anything to have one. But, I knew if I didn't quit, I would die."

Chuck goes on to explain "I think it was a choice of whether I wanted to live or not. I think if I hadn't stopped smoking four years ago I'd be dead today."

In the opinion of Chuck Ladner, "Smoking is as bad as any drug you've got on the market, and a damned expensive habit at seventy cents a pack. For me that would have been $140 a day plus the fact you're ruining your health."

Mary Ladner, Chuck's

wife, and the Cancer Society's Education Chairman for Dublin, works with high school students from Dublin High School who show films in elementary schools for third, fourth, fifth and sixth graders on the dangers of smoking.

Mary reveals that the most often asked question by the younger children, after learning of the harmful effects of tobacco smoke, is: "How can I get Mom and Dad to quit smoking?"

Although there is little that children can do to stop their parents from harming their health with tobacco smoke, says Mary, it at least brings up a point of discussion with the parents that lets them know their kids are concerned about them.

"If people would make a point to stop smoking even for 24 hours, even one less cigarette that day would help them," says Mary.

And Chuck adds: If more people could be around people who have emphysema, they'd be convinced."

Young smoker can't quit

"I've been smoking since I was thirteen. It will be four years ago on November 16th," says the now 17-year-old young Livermore mother.

"It was more fun to smoke when I wasn't allowed to. At 17 I smoke two packs a day. I know I should quit. I have a grandfather with emphysema. Lung disorders run in my family," says the young woman, "but it seems like I can't quit. At least, I'm telling myself I can't quit. That's the mistake I'm making."

"I smoke because I have a bad case of nerves," she reveals, "I smoke to reward myself. I think I can't talk on the phone without lighting up a cigarette."

The young woman looks tenderly at her five week old baby as she inhales her cigarette. "I smoked the whole time I was pregnant. I told the doctor I smoked, but never told him how much."

She said she comes from a smoking family, with her mother smoking more than one pack a day, and her father, a pack a day, but her 20 year old brother doesn't smoke. He had asthma growing up, she explains, and "learned to appreciate breathing."

The young woman reveals some problems she believes are connected with her smoking. "I'm short of breath. A ten-year-old beat me running the other day, and I think the baby was smaller because of my smoking."

"And I heard," she continues, "that a woman who smokes has a child with lower intelligence." But she indicates she isn't worried about her own baby, who seems very bright.

Thinking ahead, she reveals, "I intend to stop smoking before the baby is big enough to see me smoking, and realize what I am doing." She has heard also that babies suffer from nicotine withdrawal symptoms if their mothers smoked during pregnancy, but she says, "I'm smoking and I'm breast-feeding her. I hate myself for being so weak that I have to smoke."

"If I stopped smoking right now," says the young

Tips: (gasp!) How to stop

The American Cancer Society offers the following tips to stop smoking which were suggested by liberated ex-smokers.

1. Try replacing that hot cigarette with a hot (spicy) drink. Tomatoe juice with Worcestershire sauce, pepper and other seasonings is excellent.

2. Smoke only in a certain spot — one that is isolated, uncomfortable and devoid of amusements such as TV, books or food.

3. Take a deep breath instead of a cigarette before answering the phone, if you have that habit.

4. "Craving" smokers will find this suggestion helpful. Select a day on which you will definitely quit, and for a few days before smoke excessively. Double your intake until the entire process floods your system with nicotine and makes you sick and disgusted with cigarettes. When the distaste for nicotine is at its height, quit.

5. Tell all your friends that you definitely are going to quit. This will help you from backsliding. You don't want to ruin your reputation. Promise someone a dinner if you return to smoking.

6. Let your family give you some sort of celebration. Make a failure a financial punishment — make bets on your ability to stop and offer good odds.

7. Take up pipe smoking. It'll drive you crazy to try to keep that pipe lighted. Besides, you won't inhale as much.

8. Change your smoking habits by changing brands. Keep switching to lower tar and nicotine cigarettes, but don't increase your usage. The final change you make will be to quit.

Bishops condemn report

Catholic group sees easing sexual taboos

WASHINGTON — Roman Catholic bishops Wednesday condemned a report that urges an easing of religious rules on sex and concludes church taboos such as adultery, pre-marital sex, homosexuality and masturbation can be condoned in some circumstances.

Speaking through their important doctrinal committee, the bishops said the study by Catholic theologians "departs from the teaching of the church," abandons "objective criteria" of evaluating sex acts and weakens "the demands of sound morality."

Auxiliary Bishop Daniel E. Pilarczyk of Cincinnati said the doctrinal committee had assurances that its position represented the view of the entire National Conference of Catholic Bishops, which is meeting here. However, the conference took no vote on the matter.

"By abandoning norms that make specific demands, the report reaches the conclusion that sexual activity outside of marriage can be permissible or even virtuous," the bishops said in repudiating such conclusions.

The book-length study, "Human Sexuality: New Directions in American Catholic Thought," was issued last spring by a five-member committee of the Catholic Theological Society of America and has stirred widespread interest and varying reaction.

It departs from the church's traditional absolute "do's" and "don'ts" about sex and takes a more flexible approach by assessing the morality of sexual acts on a case-by-case basis.

The study says the morality of all sexual behavior including church-condemned acts as masturbation, homosexuality and pre-marital sex — hinges on whether they contribute to personal wholeness and creative growth and whether they are "self-liberating and other-enriching."

Such criteria "are too vague to apply with any kind of precision or assurance," the bishops' committee said. "In effect, they remove the essential connection between sexual activity and procreation, sexual activity and marital love."

The statement emphasized that the church has always "condemned such behavior as fornication, adultery and masturbation as sinful." These were cited by bishops at a news conference as among acts the study would condone in certain situations.

"The norms are wrong and potentially dangerous," Bishop Walter W. Curtis of Bridgeport, Conn., said. "They are not helpful but deceptive and poor moral guidelines."

Meanwhile, the church's first broad statistical survey on drinking by its clerics indicates about 5 percent of the country's 58,300 priests are alcoholics.

The alcoholic rate is about half that of the estimate commonly used in the past by the church. The new study, released Tuesday in conjunction with the conference, cited a previous 10 percent rate among priests but did not give details about who made those estimates.

The findings were gathered in a study by the Rev. Joseph Fichter of the Sociology Department of Loyola University in New Orleans.

Demo leader discounts special solons' session on property tax relief

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Calling the Legislature back into session on property taxes, as Republican leaders have suggested, probably would be a waste of $300,000, Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy said Wednesday.

That's how much it would cost to keep the lawmakers in session for the next five weeks, and the cause of property tax relief probably wouldn't be advanced, the San Francisco Democrat told reporters.

"Even if the Legislature reconvenes tomorrow, no tax relief can possibly reach homeowners or renters till November 1978," under a bill acceptable to Republicans, McCarthy said.

Ten Republicans, including minority leaders of both houses, filed petitions Tuesday asking for a reconvening of the 1977 session to resume work on property tax relief.

Tax rebate bills backed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and Democratic leaders have been blocked twice in the state Senate, with every Republican and a handful of Democrats voting no.

"The timing is good, very good, because the (property) tax bills have gone out ... and the public is screaming for relief," Assembly GOP leader Paul Priolo of Malibu said at a Los Angeles news conference.

He said Republicans don't have a specific tax proposal. Priolo and others have presented various bills in the past, which have been bottled up in the Democrat-controlled Legislature.

In the afternoon session, Cooper stuck by his abstention. Santana voted a slow, reluctant "yes" and the issue was settled, leaving many observers scratching their heads and mumbling something about logic.

County board balks, then okays jail bid

OAKLAND — Petrini Construction got the bid to begin construction of a new 500 bed pre-trial jail facility in Oakland this week, but it took a lunch break to do it.

The necessary three votes weren't there in the morning session, as only Supervisors Valerie Raymond and Joseph Bort voted for it. Supervisor John George is philosophically opposed to building any more new jails, so that left Fred Cooper and Charles Santana for the third vote.

Cooper abstained, though he voted in favor of an earlier motion resolving the financing of the jail. He said he voted against the jail construction because the method of financing finally decided was not the way he thought it should be done. He couldn't get three votes for the method he wanted.

This sudden reversal by Cooper surprised Chairman Charles Santana. It left the swing vote up to him, but he didn't supply it then.

Santana gave no reason for opposing the Oakland jail, though his opposition to a 300 to 500 bed jail proposal in Hayward is well-known. Bort suggested the supervisors vote again after lunch when Cooper and Santana could get together and work out whatever sort of difference they had.

In the afternoon session, Cooper stuck by his abstention. Santana voted a slow, reluctant "yes" and the issue was settled, leaving many observers scratching their heads and mumbling something about logic.

Health costs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A plan to provide increased mental health services, emphasizing small neighborhood facilities but continuing the role of state mental hospitals, has been handed to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. by Los Angeles County officials.

The estimated $23 million cost — 90 percent of which would come from state funds — would provide an array of non-hospital treatment, including nursing homes, day treatment centers and expanded mobile emergency teams.

Daydreams—good for health

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Daydreaming is good for the health and people can slip into any situation that is pleasant for them without using hypnosis or transcendental meditation, says a researcher who studied who to relax.

"All work, not one better than another," said Dr. Louis Dubin, a dentist who teaches a course on hypnosis at the Temple University School of Dentistry. He was part of a four-man relaxation study team for 18 months.

Dubin likened relaxing more to a flight into fancy, a mind-visiting trip to somewhere else — or doing something you like, which always makes a person feel better.

"It used to be if you closed your eyes, sat back in a comfortable chair, maybe listened to music, that this environment of doing nothing was regarded as relaxing," Dubin said in an interview.

"We now recognize that is sometimes a mistake, that relaxation is unique to the individual, that it means different things to different people. Some people are geared to move rapidly. They have to be doing something. Their best way of relaxing is doing what pleases them the most — playing tennis or scuba diving, skiing or driving a racing car.

Relaxation is a pleasant emotional state which subsequently results in a pleasant physical state," he said.

"Suppose you enjoyed the seashore," Dubin suggested. "You conjure a mental picture of a beautiful balmy day, the sun shining, the water rolling up the beach, the seagull flying by.

"With no other thoughts you let yourself go into whatever is pleasant for you. You leave your body where it is and transport your mind to another location and experience.

"If you stop being on guard as you do in the course of your business, your professional or your social life, and let go physically and emotionally, all the tension, all the apprehension, all the facade you create for the people around you, you are completely free of all responsibility.

"The muscles relax, the mind relaxes, the physical well-being of the person is almost divorced from from his body and he will relate to what pleases him the best."

Dr. Donald Morse, an associate professor of endodontology at Temple's dental school, headed the team that measured the physiological body responses of 37 men and 11 women.

"The real shocker was that the instruction to relax did achieve deep relaxation," Morse said.

Incomes take big jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans increased their personal income by the largest amount in seven months in October, as factory workers increased their wages and government salaries rose, the Commerce Department said today.

Total personal income rose 1.3 percent in October, after rising 0.8 percent in September and 0.6 percent in August, the department said. The October increase was the largest since a 1.5 percent increase in March.

The $22.2-billion increase in October put total personal income for the month at $1 trillion, 580.9 billion, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate.

Private wages and salaries increased $10.1 billion in October after rising $6.7 billion in September.

A 7 percent federal pay increase that took effect Oct. 1 helped overall government wages and salaries increase by $4.2 billion in October, compared with $1.5 billion in September. The raises for federal civilian and military personnel accounted for $2.8 billion of the boost.

Manufacturing payrolls rose $3.8 billion in October, after rising $1.8 billion in September. About two-thirds of this increase was accounted for by an increase in average hourly earnings from $5.36 to $5.41 per hour. Employment also increased, and the average work week rose from 36.0 to 36.1 hours.

Payrolls in the durable goods industries accounted for most of the increase, with transportation equipment, electrical and non-electrical machinery and fabricated and primary metals showing the biggest gains.

Seabrook protest

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — Opponents of the Seabrook nuclear power plant said Wednesday they will stage a fourth demonstration with thousands of people occupying the plant's construction site next June 24.

"We hope construction is halted before June 24. If it is not we will attempt to stop it then. And if not then we will return again and again," said Cathy W. Wolfe, a leader of the Clamshell Alliance. The alliance has organized three earlier demonstrations at the site.

The Alliance made the announcement at a news conference at the main gate to the $2.3 billion plant's construction site.

Clamshell members also plan a blockade to prevent delivery of a nuclear reactor containment vessel "at every stage of delivery," said Guy Chichester, another Clamshell member.

Chichester said the alliance is now trying to find out where the vessel is being built. "We have the connections all across the country now to have brothers and sisters ... put the company on notice that it will be blocked at every stage of delivery if they try to deliver it."

The news conference came after four persons arrested for criminal trespass at two earlier demonstrations got stiff jail sentences in the Rockingham County Superior Court. The judges had said they hoped the sentences would deter future violations of the law.

County

Women lose in government

OAKLAND — Women in Alameda County are not getting full rights in employment, health, credit, education and legal services, the Alameda County Commission on the Status of Women said this week.

The Three-year-old panel is comprised of 14 women and one man, all citizens appointed by the board of supervisors to serve in an advisory capacity.

In a seven-page annual report with voluminous documenting material, the commission criticized the part closest to home — Alameda County government itself.

More than 59 per cent of the county's 9,500 employees are women, but most are found in the under-$10,000 bracket, said the commission.

By contrast, no women are found in the top 46 positions which pay more than $36,000 a year. Only 60 of the 422 employees earning over $25,000 are female.

"We are not convinced there are no 'eligible' women for these top positions," said the commission. "We are convinced that the county could be doing a much better job in recruitment, hiring and promotion. We are willing to help the county to take positive steps to correct these inequities."

The panel also hit the lack of female appointments to county boards and commissions. Women occupied eight of the 128 seats on the commissions surveyed, although since the survey, the two women on the planning commission have been joined by two more.

A big part of the 128 seats are the 71 seats on various panels that run local Veterans Memorial Halls for the county. While recognizing only men get drafted into military service, the commission thinks that at least a few female military veterans could be enlisted to serve on the veterans' commissions.

County supervisors referred the report to department heads for comment.

Inspection complaints

OAKLAND — Where is protection for the Alameda County consumer, Kathleen Peterson asked county supervisors this week.

Peterson, a San Leandro homeowner, complained to supervisors she got no satisfaction from the county's district attorney, the county's building inspection department and the state licensing board of contractors over workmanship she alleged was done badly by a remodeling contractor.

She claimed that the state licensing board of contractors is made up entirely of contractors and has no interest in protecting the consumer.

She alleged that the Alameda County District Attorney's deputy in charge of her complaint would not even talk to her about why he would not file a case against the remodeler.

And worst of all to Peterson's thinking the Alameda County building inspection department passed inspection on the work. That despite a ceiling "which was so loose you could move it with your hands," said Peterson.

Several women in the audience who Peterson's said had similar stories to tell nodded their heads in agreement with Peterson as she told her tale.

Linda Akulian, former member of the Alameda County Consumer Affairs Commission, said Peterson's problems show why the commission repeatedly has asked the county to form a Consumer Affairs Department.

Akulian asked that appropriate county department heads get a report on Peterson's complaints. They will and so will supervisors, with special attention to the allegations about the roles of the district attorney and building inspection departments in the affair.

A golden break

OAKLAND — Gold miner Norman Fox hit pay dirt with Alameda County supervisors this week.

Called on the carpet for not fixing up an old house and yard at 2125 Placer drive, San Leandro, Fox said he will replace the house with a new one next fall, if supervisors just give him the time — plus one favor.

The time is needed because his capital is tied up in his Nevada gold mine. The favor is a little more complicated.

State law says Fox would have to do an earthquake study if he builds a new home on the site. Ironically the gold miner doesn't want to put out the money for the registered geologist required to do the study.

So Fox persuaded supervisors to let him use a loophole in the law which exempts old home remodelings from earthquake standards. Fox, with the supervisors permission, will add his new home to one wall of the old house and tear down the rest of the old home.

Only Supervisor Fred Cooper disagreed with his colleagues on the decision. However, Fox will have to board up windows on the old house and make the yard "neat as a pin" within 30 days, said the maker of the motion, Supervisor Joseph Bort. Otherwise, no deal. Okay, said Fox.

FB bowl games cater to TV dollars

NEW YORK — Once upon a time football games were scheduled by the schools involved to suit the fans who would show up and watch. And if television wanted to turn up at the appointed time and aim some cameras at the field, that was fine.

The result was that fans in Dallas, Miami, New Orleans, and Pasadena attended games at a normal hour and got home in time for dinner. And fans everywhere else sat close enough to their TV sets to get radiation burns and flipped the dial frantically to keep up with three games going at once.

But with the emergence of TV as a major bankroller of college football, the picture changed. Reasoning with some logic that three games going at once results in a smaller viewing audience for each one, TV and the bowl committees began spreading them out.

The Orange Bowl moved to New Year's night with satisfactory results. And the Sugar Bowl moved to New Year's eve with disastrous results. Seems that people were reluctant to spend their New Year's Eve watching Alabama quarterbacks run the triple option. Fancy that.

So last year the Sugar Bowl people petitioned the NCAA's extra events committee for a change in starting time. They wanted to come back to a 1 p.m. start, same time the Cotton Bowl was to begin. They got 11:30 a.m. instead.

The Sugar Bowl had what was supposed to be the most attractive pairing last year, top-ranked Pitt with Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett against Southeast Conference champ Georgia. But when the ratings came in, the Sugar Bowl had been whopped by the Rose Parade, of all things, and was dead last among the four major games. The Rose Parade, which is televised by both NBC and CBS, beat Corsett & Co. by a 2-to-1 margin.

The Sugar Bowl came back at the extra events committee this year and won. The Sugar Bowl will start at 1 p.m. The Cotton Bowl is not amused.

"We went through the channels and I suppose our persuasions were taken into consideration ... and then shelved," says a Cotton Bowl source. "People now have two choices. Our audience could be cut in half, that's the way my mathematics works."

Bob James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, was chairman of the extra events committee when the decision was made.

We took a great deal of time evaluating this case," says James. "One thing we were not aware of was that the 11:30 time slot was right in the middle of the Rose Bowl Parade. Their ratings on the West Coast were practically nil because of this."

It has long been suggested that the long arm of TV, ABC in particular, is involved in all this. ABC signed a whopping $118 million TV deal with the NCAA last summer. Is it possible the NCAA would be inclined to help out ABC in this matter as an unofficial part of the TV deal? "I can give you absolute assurance that the NCAA TV package had no bearing at all on the committee's decision," says James. "ABC did not pressure the committee in any way. Of course it would be sheer folly to think that ABC was not closely involved with the Sugar Bowl in preparing their report."

The basic problem is that there are four bowl games on the same day and they all want different starting times. None of them want to play in the morning where ratings are lowest and the mighty Rose Parade holds sway, or late at night when half the country is asleep and the other half is numb from an overdose of football. This year's situation is temporary and may be changed next year.

There were eight bowl games on national television last season and the highest-rated game was the Rose on NBC. The Rose Bowl drew a 26.9 rating and 45 share, meaning 26.9 per cent of all TV sets in the nation

Tarky hopes for comeback

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Fran Tarkenton got out of his hospital bed for the first time Wednesday and told newsmen that he's going home soon and still holds out hope for playing in the National Football League playoffs.

The 37-year-old Minnesota Vikings' quarterback, who suffered a broken bone in his lower right leg Sunday against Cincinnati, said he would be discharged Friday from Midway Hospital. Tarkenton said he would return to his home in Atlanta for about two weeks.

Tarkenton said he would take a wait and see attitude about whether he might return to action for the NFL playoffs Dec. 26.

"We'll have to see how it mends," pro football's all-time leading passer told a news conference at the hospital.

Dr. Don Lannin, the Vikings' team physician, noted that an ankle injury like Tarkenton's can be "awfully sore for 10 days."

Tarkenton said he was confident that the Vikings could nail down their fifth straight playoff berth in the final five weeks of the regular season.

The Vikings, 6-3, lead the Central Division of the National Football Conference by two games over the Chicago Bears and Detroit Lions. The Vikings play the Bears in Chicago Sunday.

Tarkenton also said that he had made no decision on whether to play in 1978. He has one year remaining on his $400,000 annual contract.

Carew wins MVP award

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, who spent much of the 1977 season chasing baseball's elusive .400 mark, Wednesday won the American League's Most Valuable Player award.

"It is a big thrill," said the 32-year-old first baseman. "The MVP is the MVP."

"Over the years it seemed the award went to a guy on a pennant winning team," said Carew. "I geared myself for it not to happen."

Carew batted .388 the past season, when he won his sixth hitting title and fifth in the past six years. He led the majors with 128 runs and 239 hits, the most hits since Bill Terry had 254 for the New York Giants in 1930.

Carew received 12 first-place votes and had 273 points in balloting by a 28-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Ten other players collected first-place votes in the most diverse voting in the 47-year history of baseball's most prestigious award. Carew is the 16th player from a non-pennant winning team to win. The Twins finished fourth in the AL West, 17½ games behind champion Kansas City.

Outfielder Al Cowens of Kansas City was runner-up in the balloting with 217 points and had four first-place votes. Outfielder Ken Singleton of the Baltimore Orioles attracted three first-place votes and finished third with 200 points.

First place was worth 14 points, second place 9 points, third place 8, etc.

Designated hitter-outfielder Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox finished fourth and was followed by four members of the world champion New York Yankees — third baseman Graig Nettles, relief ace and Cy Young Award winner Sparky Lyle, catcher Thurman Munson, who won the 1976 MVP, and outfielder Reggie Jackson.

UCLA's Bashore returns to team

LOS ANGELES — UCLA quarterback Rick Bashore, who suffered a broken rib and a collapsed lung Nov. 5, practiced with the Bruins Wednesday for the first time since being injured.

A UCLA spokesman said the sophomore signal-caller who started the Bruins' first nine games of the football season participated in a non-contact practice and "threw the ball well."

No decision has been made on whether Bashore will be able to play in UCLA's regular-season finale against Southern Cal Nov. 25. Bashore won't participate in any contact drills until next week.

Bashore, who suffered his injuries in the Bruins' 21-3 victory over Oregon, was replaced by junior Steve Bukich against Oregon State last Saturday. Bukich completed 10 of 15 passes for 140 yards and one touchdown in a 48-18 UCLA victory.

The 20th-ranked Bruins are in the driver's seat in the Pacific Conference race. UCLA would automatically earn a spot in the Rose Bowl by defeating USC.

Should Washington State beat Washington and California beat Stanford this Saturday, the Bruins would be assured of a berth in Pasadena Jan. 2 whether they defeated USC or not.

UCLA has a 5-1 Pac-8 record and a 7-3 overall mark.

De Anza wins, 2-1

Ref's call ends Glads' season

HAYWARD — Only a time worn lesson can be learned from the outcome of yesterday's Chabot-DeAnza Golden Gate Conference JC soccer playoff game: the hand is quicker than the eye.

The foot, too, is quicker than the eye. The leg is quicker than the eye. The stomach and waist are quicker than the eye.

Yes, the whole body must have been quicker than the referee's eye in a disputed tripping call that led to a winning penalty kick for DeAnza College in a 2-1 decision over Chabot that finished the Gladiator season.

Technically, the Dons did now win the game on the penalty kick. Glad goalie Pete Howard, after psyching himself up by talking to the ball, knocked away the free, first attempt by Russ Ellis with his fists. A split second later, Ellis toed in the rebound before Chabot could clear the ball.

The winning goal came with six minutes left in the fourth overtime. Had the two teams remained scoreless, the game would have gone into penalty kicks.

Had the game gone into penalty kicks, DeAnza wouldn't have had a second chance to kick it in. Howard's save would have been the end of that.

Chabot coach John Shaw and the rest of his team weren't as nearly upset over the bad luck on the penalty kick rebound as they were over the call. The Glads argued the trip occurred out of the penalty area.

Called on Bob Arteaga, the trip was obvious but not clear as to the point of the infraction. The same referee who Tuesday stopped a breakaway by the Glads' Shannon Estill in the second overtime on a minute obstruction call cited yesterday's infraction.

He walked off the field afterwards with all the authority of a blind mouse.

"When Bob hit him, he was out of the penalty box," explained the Glads' John Rodrigues, "then he rolled into it, and then the ref called the foul."

Shaw repeated his view, saying, "He rolled over about five or six times. I don't mind losing to DeAnza. That's OK. That's fair, but I don't like losing to the ref. Not even a corner kick, not even a free kick. The ref's gave him a penalty kick."

It was an abrasive ending to what Shaw called his "best Chabot team ever," and that includes the State Champion team of 1974 and 1975.

"There's nothing you can do," Shaw said after giving his team an emotional talk after the game. "It was a judgement call. And the judgement was terrible."

The loss left the young Glads, who started only three sophomores, talking silently to themselves and staring at the ground. Shaw told them, "you're a great bunch of guys and I hate to see you lose this way. You played for the State championship out there today."

Shaw said he felt DeAnza would go on to win the State championships. "After they've been through the Golden Gate Conference, and a game like that with Chabot, I think they'll take State."

"I'm very proud of this team. They're a credit to this school. Their mental preparation and physical preparation for the games was excellent. I think we would have won if it had gone into penalty kicks," he continued. "I thought we proved the last two days we were every bit as good as DeAnza, and they had seven men on all-conference while we had two. What a joke."

The Dons finished the GGC season in first place, while the Glads were third behind CCSF. They beat San Francisco 5-2 Saturday while DeAnza was toppling West Valley 5-1. They had to beat DeAnza twice in order to win the playoffs.

Chabot, like Tuesday, had their chances to win the game outright. Both Jaime Rodriguez and Wes Settle had excellent shots at goals, but netkeeper John Spurgeon was there to stop them both times.

Rodriguez, from Granada High, sailed a lofty kick toward the right post that was grabbed high in the air. Settle, a Livermore High product, picked up a pass right in front of the net late in the first overtime and booted it off Spurgeon's chest, but the goalie held on for the save.

Angels after Bostock

ANAHEIM — The California Angels actively seek Manager Gene Mauch and outfielder Lyman Bostock from the Minnesota Twins and might need etherial help to land either.

Mauch leaves no doubt he'd be happy to pilot the Angels, but he has one year left on his three-year contract to direct the Twins and owner Calvin Griffith hasn't been happy with California's overtures.

Bostock, the No. 2 hitter in the American League, has played out his option with the Twins and will leave, but his agent says the Angels are only one of the teams currently in the bidding.

Earlier the Angels felt they had landed both Mauch and Bostock and the possibility remains.

Abdul Jalil, the agent for Bostock, denied published reports that his client and the Angels were close to agreement.

The player commented, "I expect to make a decision by Monday or Tuesday of next week."

$1 million rookie

Dorsett gains first start ever

DALLAS — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, playing a pat hand only as long as he's winning, announced Wednesday that million-dollar rookie running back Tony Dorsett will make his first professional start Sunday in the city where he gained his collegiate fame, Pittsburgh.

"That's great...it's what I've been dreaming about," exulted Dorsett, who was collegiate football's all-time leading ground gainer at the University of Pittsburgh.

Landry said the fact the Heisman Trophy winner was from Pittsburgh had nothing to do with his decision to elevate the explosive Dorsett over 13-year veteran Preston Pearson.

"That had no bearing," said Landry. "Preston lives in Pittsburgh. It's an injustice to him if you want to look at it that way. I just felt it was time to do it."

Landry, who had brought Dorsett slowly into the complex Cowboy offense, said all along he would start the All-American "when I had a feel for it."

Sunday's 24-17 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals, snapping an eight-game Dallas victory streak obviously had a lot to do with the way Landry felt about matters.

"Tony's been running well and we feel we need him in there."

Contempt for gays

Dave Kopay's toughest opponent

SAN JOSE — He's 6-foot-1, 205 pounds. His style of dress is "normal" and his handshake would frighten a brown bear.

But Dave Kopay's outward ruggedness often camouflaged his inner emotions. For most of his 35 years, he remained a secretive, furtive homosexual.

Through the 1964 Rose Bowl season with the University of Washington and 10 years as a professional football player, few were aware of Kopay's sexual preference.

In December of 1975, after being shipped from team to team as if he were a chain letter, Kopay came out of the locker in an interview with the Washington Star.

During a recent visit to San Jose State University, Kopay told the homosexual community, "you have to be your own best friend."

Risking ridicule from relatives, friends and other athletes, Kopay shed his disguises and has no regrets.

"I've never been more in touch with my masculinity," he said. "I get so angry when people try to make me feel below them."

A veteran of five pro teams, including the San Francisco 49ers, Kopay now earns a living from speaking engagements and from his autobiography, "The Dave Kopay Story."

Kopay is working on a second book, as yet untitled.

"Gloria Steinem suggested I call it, 'Don't Die Wondering.' I thought of naming it 'Everybody's a Little Queer,' because I really think that's true," he said.

Kopay's controversial revelations have caused minimal problems.

"I was offered several small college coaching jobs," he said. "But, what I'm doing know is more important than coaching."

Of his mail, Kopay says, "Only about one per cent of the letters I get are hate mail — and I got four Bibles out of that."

"No, I haven't received any letters from Anita Bryant," he said in reference to the anti-homosexual crusader. "She doesn't really hate gays." Smile.

Kopay is getting into the cosmetics industry.

"If Joe Namath can sell panty hose," he said proudly, "I can sell cosmetics."

While the National Football League has refused comment on the Kopay revelations, the one-time running back is becoming a popular figure on the lecture circuit.

He spoke recently to a crowd of some 500 at the University of Massachusetts.

He won't place a figure on his earnings, but Kopay said he's "doing all right" from book royalties and an NFL pension.

"This has turned into a profession," he said of his crusade on behalf of homosexuals.

Kopay recalled a recent survey he says was "done in secret," in which 50 per cent of the college players interviewed admitted to a homosexual experience.

In the process of getting an "amicable divorce" from his wife, Kopay does not discount the possibility that he may again become involved with a woman.

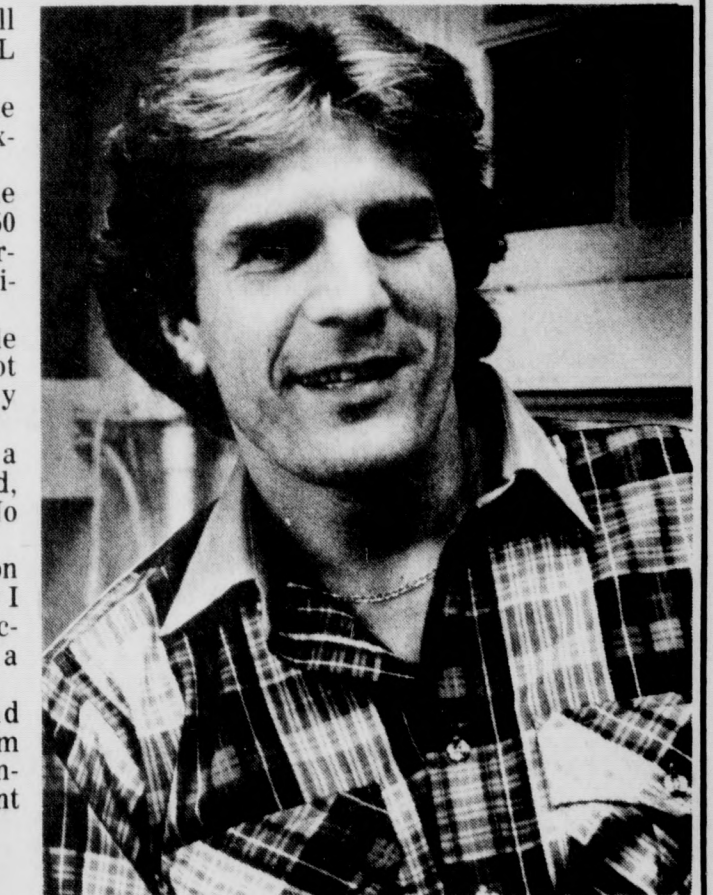

"I may have a relationship with a woman and have children," he admitted. "But, I would never get married. No way."

"I don't think there's any question about who I am, what I want and what I need," he said. "People putting their occupation ahead of their happiness is a very sad thing."

Kopay thanked his audience and limped down a darkened auditorium aisle. After 10 years of pro ball, his damaged right knee had required recent surgery.

The knee is expected to heal. Some scars, though, last forever.

'Stang gymnast is prep-of-week

Monte Vista High School's senior gymnast Kathi Chapman shares this week's Contra Costa County Fleeto Sports Award with Clayton Valley swimmer Sheryl Smiarowski.

Chapman, undefeated in all-around competition this season, took the award by winning all four events at Saturday's East Bay Athletic League championships in convincing fashion.

Chapman racked up scores of 8.5 in the floor exercise, 8.2 on the beam, 8.3 on the bars and 9.0 in vaulting to out-distance her nearest competitor by more than five points.

Smiarowski, a junior, has not lost this season in either the 200-yard individual medley or the 100-yard butterfly and won both events at the North Coast Section finals in Concord with times of 2:11.8 in the IM and :58.5 in the fly.

Smiarowski also anchored the 400-yard relay quartet.

San Lorenzo's junior quarterback, Paul Petros, won the Alameda County award.

The 6-1, 200-pound Petros set a new single-game Hayward Area

Athletic League passing yardage record when he completed 16 of 29 passes for 346 yards and three touchdowns in a 27-18 win over Marina.

The victory clinched the Rebels' berth in the North Coast Section AA play-offs and their first HAAL championship since 1970. This season, Petros has passed for 1239 yards in league play and 1650 overall.

In San Mateo County, Carlmont's senior cross-country runner Sharon Miller earned the nod via a valiant effort.

Running fourth in the Mid-Peninsula League finals, Miller fell one-half mile from the finish. In great pain, Miller got to her feet and limped to an 11th-place finish — despite what was later diagnosed as a broken pelvis.

That 11th place finish enabled Carlmont to win the team championship by a single point.

In San Francisco, Roy Smally, a 6-2, 195-pound senior fullback for Galileo was the winner.

Smally packed the ball 17 times for 244 yards, including touchdowns of 68, 70 and 15 yards.

OSU, Michigan go for roses

NEW YORK — This weekend is the one-year anniversary of Michigan's 22-0 victory over Ohio State, earning the Wolverines a trip to the Rose Bowl. It is also the two-year anniversary of Ohio State's 21-14 victory over Michigan, earning the Buckeyes a trip to the Rose Bowl.

It is also the three-year anniversary... Well, you get the picture. No. 4 Ohio State at No. 5 Michigan, once again, for the Big Ten football title and all the roses in Pasadena. The preseason is over in the Big Ten. Let the real season begin.

A whole decade has passed since some other Big Ten team besides mighty Michigan or awesome Ohio State has opened the new year at the Rose Bowl.

Where were you in 1968, when Indiana went to Pasadena following its conference tie with Minnesota and Purdue?

Bo Schembechler was at Miami of Ohio for his final season there before beginning dynasty building at Ann Arbor. His coaching counterpart on Saturday, the irascible Woody Hayes, was firmly entrenched in Columbus, looking forward to his 18th season as head coach of the Buckeyes.

In the Big Ten, the more things change, the more they stay the same. As sure as a New Year's Day hangover is either Michigan or Ohio State facing a team from the Pacific live and in color on NBC.

The only difference this time is that the game will be played on Jan. 2. Sundays are reserved for religion, which in many American families in the fall means the National Football League. So Monday will be Rose Bowl Day.

Who will be there? Michigan, 9-1, or Ohio State, 9-1. The oddsmakers, taking into consideration the more than 100,000 screaming fans at Ann Arbor, rate the Wolverines a slight favorite.

That would be a good bet, as would Ohio State. The teams, built on solid defenses as usual, are very evenly matched. But when you put your change down on the counter for this paper, you deserve a prediction. So here goes.

Ohio State 14, Michigan 10. Why? Because Oklahoma, the team Ohio State lost to, is better than Minnesota, the team that victimized Michigan.

Baylor at No. 1 Texas: Fred Akers' undefeated Longhorns get to settle another score in their redemption campaign.

Traded Dantley still surprised

BUFFALO — Two months after the Buffalo Braves traded him to the Indiana Pacers, Adrian Dantley isn't bitter — just mystified.

Dantley, the National Basketball Association's rookie-of-the-year last season, was swapped with Mike Bantom for high-scoring forward Billy Knight.

"I was very, very surprised, and I still don't understand it. I got along with my teammates. I didn't argue with my coaches. I played hard and I was young. I just didn't understand," said the 6-foot-5 former Notre Dame star.

Knight, second in the NBA in scoring last season with a 26.8 average, is "more versatile" than Dantle and fits into the Braves' opened-up offense better, said Braves Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

Dantley replied, "They said I'm not an outside shooter — that was their reason for the trade."

"But I'm a scorer. I can make the jump shots and I get the points inside," Dantley pointed out. He entered Tuesday night's game with the Braves with a 26.8 average.

"They say I wasn't a good enough shooter for a small forward, but there ain't too many small forwards in the NBA that play inside the way I do," he said.

Dantley said, though, "I have no anger about it. That's the way it is."

He said it's too early to appraise the trade, but admitted he thinks the Pacers may have gotten the better of it.

"I think it may turn out to be a trade that helps both teams. Mike Bantom has played very well. He's a good defensive player."

He said the revamped Pacers are "coming along, but it takes time to get used to each other."

Dantley scored 14 points in the Braves' game — the same as Knight — but was held to one point by Knight in the second half.

Ex-Olympian gives conditioning tips

The traditional opening at most ski resorts comes next week, around Thanksgiving, and if you haven't gotten your equipment — skis, poles, boots, arms, legs, back, joints, etc. — in shape yet, it's still not too late.

We sat down for lunch recently with Olympic medalist Billy Kidd, who now teaches at the Steamboat ski area in Colorado. He shared with us some tips on getting ready for the season, both in physical conditioning and equipment selection.

Kidd admits he doesn't keep in shape like he used to, when he and Jean-Claude Killy were trading World Cup victories in the 1960s, but he says the average skier can get himself in reasonable shape in about a month, "starting in September and exercising right through the season."

He recommends jumping rope and half knee-bends as a start.

"Jumping rope is one of the easiest ways to exercise. Ten minutes of jump-rope is worth about a half hour of jogging, and you don't have to go anywhere," he says.

"It exercises the ankles, knees, thighs, back — the same muscles that are used in skiing. And you get independent foot action and movement," he says.

"If you do jog, try weaving in and out so you get eye-foot coordination and variations in the turns and pace," he says. "That's what you do when you ski around corners, alternating pressure on your feet."

When you do the knee bends, he says, make sure you only dip about halfway down. "Never do full knee bends," Kidd says. "They stretch your ligaments too much. And when you do them, rotate your knees from side to side to stretch the ligaments on the side of the knees."

When you exercise, you should take into consideration three things, says Kidd.

—You need strength in your arms, legs, back and stomach for poling, handling moguls and just to keep your skis under control. "You don't need to be a superman," says Kidd, "but you've got to be able to move."

—You have to improve your wind and stamina. "If you ski in Vermont or the Rockies," says Kidd, "you're going to run into high altitude situations — thin air — and you're really going to feel it in your lungs. When you exercise, push yourself a little bit so you breathe heavier."

—And, finally, you're going to fall down. "You need stretching, flexing exercises," says Kidd, "for your shoulders, ankles, knees and groin. If you're in shape, you don't need to worry about injury."

Once in reasonable shape, you're ready to select your equipment. If you're a beginner, going for your first lesson, Kidd reinforces the old axiom: rent first, buy later.

One Vike, no Glads on all-GGC squad

Jeff Sealey, the top goal scorer for Diablo Valley College this season, heads the all-Golden Gate Conference water polo team announces recently.

Sealey was chosen to the second team while teammates Greg Haines, Kevin Chalmers and Glen Nelson received honorable mention awards.

West Valley, 7-0, dominated the selections, placing Mike Yates and Wayne Yates on the first team. Kevin McCordle was selected to the second team while Joel Wade and Craig Handy were honorably mentioned.

The second place team, DeAnza, placed Phil Clark and Mike Castaneda on the first team and Woody Cavaygen on the second side. San Jose City College, third place finishers, placed freshman Brant Lewis on the first team and Doug Calmen and Scott Coffey on the second.

West Valley, DeAnza and San Mateo will be playing in the Northern California community college play-offs this weekend at San Joaquin Delta College in Stockton, beginning at 2 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

Next year, however, there will be play-offs at the end of the season to determine the GGC representatives to the NorCal tourney. The new format could favor DVC, which will be a lot stronger next season.

Chabot College neither placed a player on the team nor made the post-season play-offs. Others who did make the all-star team were: first team, Perry Martinez, CSM, Dan McCoy, Foothill; second team, Del Kendrick, Foothill, Val Reynolds, CSM, honorable mention, John Tiederman, CSM.

Backgammon fad hits the restaurant scene

Backgammon. That age-old Babylonian game of skill and chance that in past years was found only on the back of checker boards, is now sweeping the country with the force of the hula-hoop fad and has even plunged into the restaurant business.

About a dozen backgammon pubs and restaurants have popped up in the Bay Area, and owners are finding out that the new craze

"do dads" sporting a nostalgia theme so the not-so-lucky backgammon players can gaze at the walls and recall those times when their luck was better. For example, there's an elk's head, a deer's head, and a stuffed pronghorn; the prizes of several lucky hunts. And how about the sign collection that includes billboard size originals of Coca Cola and Nehi bottles not to mention and antique stop light, a Greyhound bus sign, and a speed limit sign marking the miles per hour at 60.

Soft and mellow jazz is constantly playing in the background providing easy listening for players with their eyes glued to the board.

Backgammon fans are asked to bring their own boards but some of the regulars are always on hand looking for a challenger to share their boards with.

Cash prizes up to $100 are given to tournament winners and for the losers, a chef is on hand to fix a hot supper to satisfy the hunger pains that come from casting the dice.

Tuesday night's special creation by Chef George was a saucy dish of trout new berg. An entire rainbow trout smothered with mushrooms and cheese sauce from head to tail highlights this backgammon treat. It is served on a wild rice pilaf with mild peppers to touch off a gamey accent. Freshly shelled shrimp are hiding in the garnish and round out this steaming plate. Tiny trout bones may slow up your eating pace but the tender hunks of fish make it well worth your effort.

Mushroom St. Croix, Oleg's famous sauteed mushroom dish includes a conglomeration of things and some seem to think Chef George goes a little heavy on the spinach. The St. Croix has a big layer of baby shrimp and a hint of Sherry to compliment the mushrooms, cheese, and greens.

Thursdays and Sundays feature a rack of lamb or prime rib. The lamb is roasted in herbs and spices and served with a madeira sauce. Prime rib comes sliced to order and is served with potato du jour and a dinner salad.

The special on Wednesday is chicken cordon blue and consists of chicken breasts stuffed with cheese, and prosciutto (salty Italian ham) and is served piping hot.

Friday is "Quiche" night featuring "a quiche to beat all quiches." It is made of crab, shrimp and asparagus. The crab, shrimp and scallions are flamed in brandy. This and a lot of other good things are baked together in a light French pie crust.

A fabulous Italian feast called "Osso Buco" is served on Saturdays. In this feast, specially chosen veal shanks are braised in a rich sauce of fresh tomatoes, onions, sherry, wine and herbs. It comes with a rice pilaf and a fresh vegetable.

Oleg's, which formerly was a bare-bricked spaghetti house, also claims to make the best Sicilian Army Lasagna in town. They also cater to other nationalities with "Moussaka ala demetri" Greek casserole made of layers of tender, sauteed eggplant, spicy ground beef and lamb and real Feta cheese. It is topped with a light bechamel sauce and baked to perfection.

From Russia comes Peleni Alexander. According to Oleg's this meal consists of little raviolis stuffed with a Cossack meat mixture and is served in a decadently rich soya sour cream sauce with rice.

All dinners at Oleg's include a choice of soup or salad, garlic cheese bread, and coffee or tea.

SUPPER HOURS: Sunday thru Thursday 5:30-9:00 pm. Friday & Saturday 5:30-9:30 pm.

The dining room is petitioned off from the lounge and some tables may be occupied by backgammon players perched upon chairs from the past of which no two are alike. The seats go fast on hot backgammon nights so get there early and "double"

(that's gammon lingo) your partner. Who knows, maybe you'll win enough to buy dinner for two.

Restaurants

The great grease rip off

HOUSTON — Slippery thieves are running a slick new racket stealing used cooking grease from fast-food restaurants and selling it to rendering plants at fat profits, industry officials say.

Vernon Stewart, director of the Texas Renderers Association in Austin, says a big-city grease thief can make $200 a night and as much as $50,000 a year.

A Houston renderer says grease thefts cost her company $60,000 a year, and she estimates losses among Texas' 80 rendering firms run to "several million dollars" annually.

These and other tales were spread before law enforcement representatives who attended a seminar on grease theft problems sponsored by the association Tuesday.

The restaurants put kitchen drippings that have been used in deep-frying into 55-gallon drums stored behind their buildings. The drums are supposed to be purchased and picked up by rendering plant route trucks. The plants then resell the grease to brokers who forward it to refiners for processing into additives for products ranging from soap to plastics to animal food.

But instead, restaurant owners say thieves are carting away the loaded drums, selling the grease for $30 a barrel — often to out-of-state renderers — and selling the empty drums for $20 apiece.

Gary Blum of Wommack Grease Service in Fort Worth said thieves have an easy time selling the grease to rendering firms whose managers "are greedy for money." He said those firms undercut the normal per barrel price by about $10, and that hurts the legitimate renderers.

Several renderers complained that locks and special containers didn't stop the thieves. They called for better police patrolling.

But Lt. J.D. Peyton of Houston's Harris County Sheriff's Department said, "We're too short on men to check every truck at every restaurant."

Prosecutor Richard Trevathan of the county district attorney's office said that restauranters should build protective sheds for the drums. Then taking grease would become burglary — the act of breaking into a building — instead of simple theft and would be easier to prosecute.

Open Thanksgiving

The Hungry Hunter near Interstate 580 at the Hopyard Road exit, will be open Thanksgiving Day to serve the best of all turkeys. Stop by the Hungry Hunter and let them do the cooking.

More backgammon hangouts that popped up in the area

Other backgammon hangouts dot the Bay Area in addition to Oglet's in Berkeley.

A spokesman for "Gambit Game Store" on Telegraph Avenue in Berkeley said the craze is attacking a number of eating and drinking establishments. He listed several in the East Bay Area including "The Prince of Wales" in San Mateo, "Giovanni's," "Day's," and "The Loft," all of Berkeley; and "King's X" in Piedmont.

Andy Mousalimas who owns "King's X" told The Times that 40 to 50 people gather at his place on Thursdays to take lessons on backgammon. He also holds gin rummy tournaments but said the backgammon business is really hot and he is planning on that program at the first of the year.

King's X serves lunch everyday from 11:30 to 3 p.m. and all tournament participants are fed dinner the night of the matches. King's X also plays trivia games in conjunction with "The Cheese Factory" in Pleasanton.

Magic Pan makes some new treats

The new dinner menu at the Magic Pan Creperie holds some delicious surprises. For a starter, there's the "Vegetable Soup Provencale," a satisfying combination of fresh vegetable, beef, and barley in a broth laced with sherry.

The newest entree addition, the "Maritime Crepe Dinner," holds special appeal for seafood enthusiasts. encompasses Canadian scallops and tiny shrimp in a smooth cream sauce accented with bacon bits.

A spinach souffle crepe and a refreshing orange and almond salad are served with the Maritime crepe. One other delightful addition to the dinner menu is the "Fresh Fruit Salad," featuring fruits of the season.

Pizza hogs

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — The manager of the Pizza Factory in Greeley thought the order for 44 pizzas to be delivered to a mobile home was on the level.

After receiving the telephoned order from a man, the manager called back. Yes, the man said, he wanted 44 pizzas. The manager then went to the house himself. The man again confirmed the order.

Satisfied, the manager made and delivered the pizzas — $291 worth.

But a woman who opened the door was a little surprised. What man who ordered 44 pizzas? And, no she did not want them.

Greeley police said they did not know how the sham was worked, but said they were looking for the man. He could be charged with defrauding an innkeeper, police added.

Deer Park Villa in Fairfax

A man new to northern California was in Marin County, feeling an urge to splurge. Walking through the small town of Fairfax, he saw a man step out of a silver Rolls Royce and, being none too shy, ran over to ask where to find a "good" restaurant. The polished rolls owner answered, Deer Park Villa.

That anecdote is true. But Deer Park Villa, literally nestled in the hills of Fairfax, is not just for those who own silver Rolls Royces or who feel like making a once a year dinner splurge. It's a family restaurant with family prices — run, not surprisingly, by a large Italian family.

A 15-year-old boy who immigrated to this country in the early 1900's saw his dream in a restaurant to be handed down family lines. And when Joe Ghirninghelli got his chance to start such a business years later, he envisioned a small restaurant surrounded by woods where deer would wander through the yard surrounding a patio dining area.

Thus the name Deer Park Villa. Today sections have been added on to the original farmhouse building. The patio is larger and more sophisticated than the one Joe built. But, years after his death, the restaurant is still carried on by his extended family, continuing his idea of a nice place for families to dine where prices aren't outrageous and the atmosphere relaxes.

His portrait greets patrons as they walk in the door. Then, his daughter, Dolores, seats them. His two sons, Bob and Harry, cook in the kitchen. And their children work as waiters, waitresses, cooks, busboys and every other job.

Employees who are not Ghirninghellis (there are a few) usually have been working there years, or their relatives work there and got them jobs, or they're friends of the family. Nepotism reigns. But the result is a restaurant where service and food is excellent, the subdued atmosphere informal and every part of putting together a meal goes like clock-work — all imperceptible to customers.

Pasta, beef and seafood dinners range from $4 to $12. Meals, complete with a huge salad, soup, and dessert and coffee are enough to fill a 300 pound man. But the portions are not just large, they are good.

Debra Ghirninghelli, now 23, can remember when her big job in the family business was shredding lettuce for salads. That, she says, is the usual spot for Ghirninghelli youngsters to start learning the trade. And, unless the kid is a total klutz, he or she will eventually work up through every job, waiting for the day when Bob, Harry and Dolores retire and their children take over Joe's small dynasty.

While relatives working together could cause problems in some cases, it obviously works well here. No sappy welcomes such as so glad to have you here, my daughter so-n-so will be your waitress and my nephew such-n-such will be your busboy. But try standing on the sidelines sometime. The close coordination is incredible.

Surrounded by redwood trees and occasionally spying a deer curiously walking past the patio is not a bad way to spend an evening.

The villa in Fairfax is located off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Marin on Bolinas Road. Be prepared for a long drive.

Dublin Chamber nominees make election pitches

DUBLIN — Five nominees vying to fill three directors positions on the Dublin Chamber of Commerce board are making their pitch before the Nov. 30 election deadline.

The quintet spoke yesterday during a chamber luncheon meeting at Dublin Corral in Dublin.

The five hopefuls are Tim Baldwin, John Guri, Robert C. Olson, Frank Lehre and Harvey Tulchinsky.

Baldwin, the only incumbent, can seek reelection since he was appointed, not elected, before. This is in accordance with chamber rules.

The three directors whose one-year terms have expired are chamber President Todd Lee, Marvin Marciel and Tim Baldwin.

Baldwin, an official with Dublin's Valley Bank, has been an active chamber member since 1972. He was appointed a chamber director in 1975. He served as chamber president in 1976.

Baldwin stated yesterday he was involved in the community and hoped to continue as a chamber director.

"The fact I am electing to actively run for the position for the first time should indicate my interest in the future of Dublin," Baldwin explained.

Guri, owner of Dublin Office Supply, has been a chamber member since 1974.

He has been in this area for 20 years. Dublin has been good to me. "I would like to contribute something back to Dublin by becoming involved," Guri said.

Lehre, owner of Dublin Travel, reported he has lived in this area for 24 years and is familiar with area growth. He contended the chamber board needs representation of small businessmen as well as large corporations and banks.

"I am involved in many community activities and am happy to be running for the chamber board of directors," Lehre said.

Olson, with Bankers Life, has lived and worked in the Dublin area for nine years. He has been in the Bay area for 26 years.

"I love business. It is a challenge. Because of my interest I would like to become involved in the Dublin Chamber of Commerce. I am willing and tenacious."

Olson said he is active in community and church affairs. He said he looks forward to an opportunity to serve the chamber and develop viable programs for business members.

Tulchinsky, owner of Harvey's One Hour Martinizing, has lived and owned businesses in Dublin for 11 years. He has been a Dublin Rotarian for nine years, a founder of the Dublin Historical Preservation Association and was Commander of American Legion Post 580.

"Serving on the chamber board is something I've wanted to do for a long time. I've been here 11 years. Now is the time for me to get into the chamber as an official and see what I can do for small businesses," Tulchinsky said.

They can play

Lesher News Bureau Patrons of the Corner Club in West Pittsburg will now be able to play cards there all night on the weekends.

By a 3-1 vote, the Board of Supervisors Tuesday granted permission to Constantinos Papiannou, owner of the club on Port Chicago Highway, to remain open 24 hours a day from Friday through Sunday.

Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, who made the motion for approval, was backed by Supervisors Robert Schroeder, Walnut Creek, and James Kenny, Richmond.

The board also unanimously approved Papiannou's request to transfer part of his cardroom license to his wife, Theresa, thereby making it a joint holding. Supervisor Warren Boggess, Concord, in voting against the 24-hour operation, said, "We're edging further and further into the cardroom business."

Second Dublin directory

DUBLIN — The Dublin Chamber of Commerce has been advised a second publishing company is selling advertisements for a San Ramon Valley business directory.

The chamber has been organizing a business directory for Dublin, Pleasanton and the portion of Contra Costa County adjacent to the Alameda County line.

The chamber's publishing company is Northern California Directory Sales Company, Inc. of Palo Alto.

The second company is the Contra Costa County Publishing Company. Chamber President Todd Lee stated, "The Dublin Chamber of Commerce does not support or recommend in any way, participation in ads being sold by the Contra Costa County Publishing Company."

The second publisher is operating in San Ramon, Danville and Dublin, according to Lee.

"Hopefully there will be no confusion caused by the two companies working in the same geographical area," Lee added.

He said to clarify further, it is the chamber's understanding that the Contra Costa County Publishing Company will produce a business directory aimed at delivery in the San Ramon area referred to as Old San Ramon.

Tax break to aid handicapped

HAYWARD — Handicapped people should tell their business community about the new tax law allowing deduction of the costs of removing architectural barriers, according to Robert Johnson.

Johnson is acting Executive Director of the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board (ATBCB) in Washington D.C.

Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Code now allows the taxpayer to deduct costs of barrier removal up to the amount of $25,000 in any one tax year.

The deduction is allowed for making any place of trade or business more accessible to handicapped and elderly.

Johnson stated this was an official communication from ATBCB dated 8/77.

ATBCB was established by Congress in 1973 to ensure the compliance with the Architectural Barriers Act of 1968.

More information can be obtained from Office of Chief Counsel, IRS, 1111 Constitution Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20224.

Mental health fighter quits legislature

SACRAMENTO — Frank Lanterman, a crusty 76-year-old Republican who has been a pioneer in mental health legislation, said Wednesday he would retire next year after 28 years in the Assembly.

Lanterman, the state's oldest legislator, said age, health, and frustration with the Brown administration prompted him to decide not to seek re-election in 1978.

"My health is not as good as a year ago because of the tremendous strain of trying to fight a one-man battle" for mental health funding, he said in a telephone interview from his home in La Canada, northeast of Los Angeles.

He said he has no post-retirement plans.

Lanterman is vice chairman and the top-ranking Republican on the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, which considers all spending bills and the state budget. He was chairman of the committee in 1969 and 1970.

A squat, bald man with a rasping voice, he has been a staunch conservative on most issues but has pushed continually to get more money for mental health programs, and criticized Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. for budget-cutting.

"I am a doctor's son and know what has to be done to take care of people who are sick," Lanterman said.

He is best known for the 1966 Lanterman-Petris-Short Act, which shifted the emphasis in mental health care from state hospitals to local programs and greatly broadened mental patients' rights.

"In the old days, they were put into state hospitals and stripped of all their legal, civil and personal rights, to the extent that there were more deprivations of rights than you imposed on a convicted felon," Lanterman said.

His bill set up restrictions on the commitment of mental patients and established a number of rights for them inside hospitals, including the right to be released at their request in 14 days in most cases.

Brown said recently he thought that limit was too short to allow adequate care. Lanterman said the governor "doesn't understand the law," and added that it allows dangerous patients to be held involuntarily for up to 90 days.

Overall, Lanterman said, Brown is "flowing out an unending stream of rhetoric to cover mismanagement of these programs." He said he had an easier time getting mental health funding from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Grain buys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is continuing its U.S. grain purchases, this time buying an additional 400,000 metric tons of corn.

It was the third Russian purchase in 24 hours, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. The Soviets also bought 601,600 tons of corn and 100,000 tons of wheat.

The purchases are expected to offset a smaller than expected Russian harvest, estimated at 194 million tons, or 10 per cent less than U.S. experts had forecast.

The Soviets are in the second year of a long-term agreement with the United States that commits them to buy at least 6 million tons of grain annually.

So far, the Russians have bought some 3.4 million tons for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30.

As Suzanne Wayt and Traci Rakstad contemplate playing 24 members Leann Bilke, Lezlie Lortz, Moe Morris and Laura Mac- hours of volleyball Saturday and Sunday, Harvest Park team caulev "scrimmage" for the big marathon.

One brutal game of volleyball

PLEASANTON — When 19 junior high girls from Harvest Park School drag themselves out of the school gym late this Sunday afternoon, they'll have the consolation of knowing they've paid for some new and much-needed volleyball equipment.

They will have "paid" for it by playing volleyball continuously for 24 hours, starting this Saturday at 5 p.m.

The consolation aspect comes from the fact that their marathon session will leave them 216 hours short of the Guinness Book of Records. The record of 240 hours was established with in the last couple years by a group of girls playing in eight-hour shifts.

Each of the brave and hearty seventh and eighth graders at Harvest Park will play for two hours and have one off. Each is presently securing pledges from friends on a per-hour basis.

Though they'll fall far short of the record book, the girls, organized by teacher Donna Eke, will have plenty of support as the long hours of Saturday night and Sunday morning bounce along.

Jack-in-the-Box of Pleasanton is providing dinner Saturday night and Safeway is contributing additional sustenance. In the works are goodies from Manny's Donuts, Winchell's, Romeo's, the Pop Shoppe, and soft drinks from Perry's Liquors.

Legalese stalls pact

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District (VCSD) is still beating the legal terminology bushes of a proposed draft sewer agreement with the City of Pleasanton in an effort to reach mutual conceptual acceptance.

Tuesday evening, VCSD directors discussed the latest draft which was submitted Monday to VCSD by Pleasanton's City Council.

The proposed draft agreement deals with the consolidation of sewage treatment facilities between VCSD and Pleasanton. Under outlined terms, Pleasanton's existing Sunol Plant would be phased out as VCSD's plant expands.

The issue has been under deliberations for 15 years. VCSD Director Ron Hyde said, "All of us have accepted the draft agreement, revised it, almost agreed, revised and accepted it so much we're like dogs chasing their tails."

VCSD General Manager Paul Ryan recommended the newest draft be referred to VCSD's Sewer

Committee for consideration and review.

Charles Ladner, VCSD board president, suggested directors iron out details before going back to the drawing board again with Pleasanton.

Board members agreed with Ladner's suggestion and spent time trying to clarify various points and word choices. They also agreed to try and set up another session with Pleasanton as soon as possible.

THE NEW 510. BEST ALL-AROUND DATSUN YET.

SEE IT ON THE NEIL DIAMOND SPECIAL TONIGHT AT 10 PM ON NBC-TV.

Bigger than the small cars, smaller than the big cars. We drove our engineers to the limits. We demanded a car whose performance, room and ride were bigger than the small cars. A car whose price and handling were smaller than the big cars. We demanded a lot. And we got it. The new 510 is big where you need it. In leg room, hip room, family room. Datsun engineers even extended the front seat track for extra stretch-out room. And included power front disc brakes for extra stopping control.

The new 510 is small where it counts. On the outside, which means it can slip into the snuggest of parking spaces. And new steering which is light to the touch helps make it easy. Levers, switches, gauges galore. The new 510 abounds in conveniences you won't find in every economy car. Stalks mounted on the steering column control lights, turn signals, wipers and washer. A multi-level air-flow system cools you all over and, wonder of wonders, defrosts and defogs even the side windows. An electric defroster helps keep the rear window clear. Built to endure. Every new 510 hitches an all-steel, all-welded unibody to a 2-liter overhead cam power plant we've raced to test endurance, and which won to prove it. MacPherson struts up front and a unique new 4-link rear suspension help iron out road wrinkles. And beeted-up insulation helps keep the big cars. Prices start at just $4,093.* The new 510 is a whole new class of economy car. A series of cars — Hatchback, Wagon, 2- and 4-Door

Sedans — that brings you the luxury of creature comforts at no extra cost. Cars that economize without compromise, at prices that are pure Datsun.
